CODAworx Announces Fourth Annual List of Creative Revolutionaries

Recognizing art and design leaders making heroic efforts across the world

Madison, WI, 2/7/2023- CODAworx, the hub of the commissioned art economy, has announced its annual list of Creative Revolutionaries. For the fourth year, the Creative Revolutionaries list spotlights creative professionals who are producing positive change through placemaking commissions.

Selected from all sectors of the commissioned art industry – artists, fabricators, public art agents, architects, and more - the individuals chosen tackle difficult issues of a social, political, or environmental nature. Due to the prestige and popularity of this list, it is currently available to view on the CODAworx website, along with photos and biographies of the winners.

CODAworx is at the center of the global movement of creative activism, supporting and promoting professionals who are changing the way the world interacts with art through novel applications of materials, technology, and the usages of space in urban landscapes.

“The art and design world is at the forefront of positive change, creating electrifying messages.” states CODAworx CEO Toni Sikes. “It is our honor to use the CODAworx platform to bring this work to wider attention.”

Joe Conover, Strategic Manager of Themed Entertainment Solutions for Panasonic Connect, noted "CODAworx and Panasonic Connect have a similar objective—to support the creatives that entertain us with their talents, amaze us with their skills, and solve problems with their expertise. Panasonic Connect is proud to support this organization and more importantly the people that make it very special. Panasonic Connect is truly excited about what Creative Revolutionaries offers, with their unique vision and perspective to share with summit attendees."
